The race: Plenty of speed runners, but whether we get a real contest for the lead to push it into faster than average is a question mark, particularly with 5 debutants in the race. All Riches, looks a natural frontrunning type who may be key to the speed as he would want to press forward & across towards the outside, but he will have to work hard to get around the bank of speed in the middle draw if he does that & would probably kick the speed up a notch. If he takes a more conservative approach then the edge would come off the speed. Out wider, Sparkling Dolphin (Purton) will be looking for the lead & outside fence & looks fast enough to get across Circuit Seven, who can be risky at the start, & Eight Trigrams. Calling pace average but potentially quicker.

Recommendations: The public seems to be reading an awful lot into the booking of Purton for a very average horse, Sparkling Dolphin. Perhaps he has had an ability transplant in his 5-month spell but seen enough of him to say that, even on his very best day, with his fitness not in question, would only see him as a 15.0 chance. That creates a problem because it creates a lot of value runners. Some of these new horses look to have smart ability, too. CIRCUIT SPLENDOR, CIRCUIT SEVEN 1.5 units each. INFINITY WIN, NOBLE DESIRE, WONDERFUL HORSE 1 unit each. GLENEALY GENERALS 0.5 unit.

The race: The lack of pace stands out here, with the two most likely leaders Good Health, who has been showing good speed at 1200m, and Oscar Glory, who has pushed forward in faster than average tempos at both runs this season at this distance. Inside, we might see Plikclone, Go Go Sixteen and particularly Smart Folks holding forward positions but not necessarily willing to get into any sort of contest for the lead. Even Oscar Glory might be happy to hand over to the superior speed of Good Health once he comes across from the wide gate and then Good Health will likely put on the brakes. The wild cards here are also drawn out – Full Power and Vitralite. Full Power has been a regular frontrunner over longer distances but is returning from arthroscopic surgery to his knees here, over a distance that is on the short side for him and the stable is often conservative with tactics from wide gates? Vitralite had his first start for a new trainer last week at 1200m, got back from a wide draw and his run was ok. Now switches up sharply in distance & he had been ridden on the speed these sorts of distances for previous trainer, although with poor results. Will he be conservative here or more positive again? More positive might suit the race but perhaps not the horse.

Recommendations: Looks an on pace race but can't get the horses favoured by the map short enough so only finding any value in a couple who want to run on from the back. VIVA POPCORN 2 units. LEADING FORTUNE 0.5 unit.

11		FORTUNE HAPPINESS	16	2	PACKING KINGDOM	>>>>>>>>>>>>>>
12		AMAZEMENT	24 ^	1	THIS IS GUTS	>>>>>>>>>>>>>?

The race: Pace looks genuine at least & likely faster. The trick is the horses coming off showing high speed at the trials – This Is Guts (now wearing Blkrs) and Packing Kingdom. Packing Kingdom has been able to get out to long leads in 2 recent trials at Conghua, where trials are often uncompetitive & no other runner tried to go with him. This Is Guts has always shown good pace without flying out of the gates but found the lead in his trial in Blkrs then raced aggressively out to a big lead & kept going. He has the Blkrs here but the query is whether he is quick enough in the first 100m to hold out Packing Kingdom or Whizz Kid – if crossed, he obviously won't be a factor in the speed & will have to take a sit? Still, there is other pace, with Handsome Rebel looking for a trailing forward spot and Utopia Life and Blotting Paper looking to get around him for a bite at the lead.

Recommendations: Can't argue with Whizz Kid as the short fav but doubt he'll be a bettable price. Market not liking the rider on EVERYONE'S VICTORY but has raced well for him before and will be running on as the leaders tire. 1.5 units.

13	23.1	BRAVE POWER	10 ^	2	BRILLIANT CHINA	>>>>>>>>
14	28.8	EVEN KEEL	22	1	TELECOM ELITE	>>>>>>

The race: Slow pace. Finding the leader here might be harder than finding the winner and that looks tough enough! There are no leaders & of the ones who might lead, King's Trooper gets keen, so Moreira might want cover; August Moon destroyed his chances by overracing in his previous attempt this distance when he did lead; and Sea Monarch has been on the lead in recent trials & has the pace to get to the front but is another who won't relax and was wrestled to the rear in 1600m in July (where he overraced). Basically, whoever ends up in front does not want to be there, which means a messy, stop start race where all kinds of tactical changes are possible.

Recommendations: Tough race not made any easier by the tricky map. Not getting too involved but there does look some value in LITTLE PLAYER and KING'S TROOPER. 1.5 units each.

11	18.3	SUPREME SUPREME	23	2	ELIGERE	>>>>>>>
12	23.2	LUCKY QUALITY	34	1	SUPREME SUPREME	>>>>>>>>>

The race: There are not many pace horses here, usually an indicator of a likely slow pace there is a chance that the tempo is better than that. California Concord has worked hard in recent starts to keep a spot on or in the lead & is quick enough to lead them here, if he begins cleanly, but then will get company from the wider-drawn horses. This is the type of scenario where Moreira on Five Elements will be positive from the start, look to cross over and try to own the race – he may have to settle for sitting outside California Concord but expect he will at least take a look at whether he can control the race in front. Two of the new horses, Supreme Supreme and Handsome Twelve do have some positional speed but not likely to be the leader. Can see this being a flurry of activity in the initial stages then the pace backing off midrace but might make it to average due to the pace drawn wide.

Recommendations: CALIFORNIA CONCORD has only had one run Sha Tin when slow to begin down the straight in Sept and should have won, yet the market looks to be taking the view that he wants HV or AWT, the tracks where he has performed well. Can see him finding the front here and is a tough 6yo who will be hard to get past if he does. 7.5 units. Frankly, have not been crazy about the form or trials of these newcomers – Nos 9,10,11 - but this is such an average C3 that they still bob up in the ratings as having some sort of chance and they are going to be big prices. HANDSOME TWELVE and NAVAS TWO 0.5 unit each.

14	13.7	TRONIC MIGHTY	41 V	1	SO AWESOME	>>>>>>>>

The race: Looks a truly-run race, with Voyage Star, Boom Stitch and Baebae Tsoi pressing from the outside half of the draw looking to to lead or race with the lead. Tronic Mighty (Blkrs on) is a potential leader too but might prefer to box seat & there is good second wave speed in the race as well. Suspect Vukan will look to drop in behind the speed from the awkward gate but Boy's Party a slight query. He showed some pace for the first 300m l/s over 1000m then drifted out of it, now jumps quickly to 1400m and he did lead a recent trial, however, it was a 4-horse trial against 3 stablemates who allowed him to have the front so it doesn't look a great guide?

Recommendations: As the prices show, this is a very tough race with any number of chances. Happy to play a few at odds. SO AWESOME and KUNG FU TEA 2 units each. VUKAN surprising odds after being caught wide f/up when 8.4 in a similar race and will be shocked if he starts this price. 1.5 units. Possible Improver here TRONIC MIGHTY from the inside draw at long odds. Had difficult runs from wide draws 2 runs this season. 1 unit.

11	14.3	SILVER EXPRESS	11	2	EXCELLENT PROPOSAL	>>>>>>
12	17.9	CIRCUIT THREE	35	1	SILVER EXPRESS	>>>>>>>>>>>>

The race: Looks good speed. Four potential leaders, which could potentially lead to a fast speed, but it must be said that Silver Express probably more likely to take the box seat than compete for the front, Buddies has only led recently when nobody else really wanted the front. Kings Shield is a fast-going leader on the dirt who has also led the last 6 times he has run on turf, where he is not as effective but is still a potential leader, and Voyage Warrior is the real wild card after he led at a solid pace 1400m l/s and now moves up to his first attempt at 1600m. He's fast enough to lead the best sprinters so he looks fast enough to lead here & the others will probably ensure he maintains a good speed.

Recommendations: Think there will be a lot less between LUCKY EXPRESS and stablemate Excellent Proposal at race time and LUCKY EXPRESS would not surprise if he starts favourite. Goes well for Purton and, on what we have seen so far, is just a better horse than Excellent Proposal. 6.5 units. NOT USUAL TALENT had very bad luck in the race won by Lucky Express l/s and entitled to another chance here at nice odds. This distance probably suits him better as well. 2.5 units. CIRCUIT THREE a pretty decent horse returning from break with new trainer & no weight. 0.5 unit.

12		PACKING FAMOUS	24 ^	2	PACKING FAMOUS	>>>>>>>>
13		KASI FARASI	34 ^	1	PERFECT MARYKNOLL	>>>>

The race: Race lacks speed horses, with the most likely scenario Super Ten straight to the lead by virtue of the inside draw and Soulmate to his outside. Super Ten's best efforts have been when not going too slow through midrace as he doesn't have great acceleration, so he might pick it up a little from the 700m, but it's hard to see how the pace will be anything but below average. The query runner for the map is Winning Dragon, this year's Derby winner in Chile, who was a good beginner there then sat in behind the speed in the Derby at 2400m (but also did a tremendous job winning what is the Chilean 2000m Guineas equivalent over 1600m after being out quickly but knocked almost to the ground in the early stages). In his HK trials, he has begun well & been handy to the pace without seeking the lead – could he be more positively ridden here from the awkward draw? Perfect To Great has been racing handy enough but moving to wide gate for first time in a while?

Recommendations: Favourites looking well found in market here in what is not the strongest C3. Prefer to roll the dice on a couple at odds that are less exposed. Liked the first run of FUNCTION PATCH in HK and his NZ form is very good. Messed up the start hopelessly at second run so no guide, been back to the trials since and jumped cleanly. 1 unit. CHAMPION DRAGON moves like decent horse in his trials, the big negative being that he hasn't been beginning well but going to be huge odds. 0.5 unit.

11		SUNSHINE SUPREME	26 ^	2	SUNSHINE SUPREME	>>>>>>>>>>
12		SPLENDID LIVING	26 ^	1	SUNNY BOY	>>>>>>>>

The race: One view of this race is that, with half the field looking to get forward positions on the inside, the pace will be true but the alternative view is that the only horse here which might actively seek the front is Magic Supreme and Sunny Boy, Sunshine Supreme, When You Believe and (possibly) Gunnison will want handy spots, find them quickly & not compete with him for the lead. Calling it average but it might not get there? Splendid Living has been showing good speed but over further, so he is a query coming back in distance though he does have cheek pieces going on to sharpen him up? Jazz Angel made a total mess of the start at HK debut but has more speed than he showed there and is likely to be more prominent today with a clean break?

Recommendations: The pace will be key to him but SUNSET WATCH is pretty good when he is good on this surface & will be hitting the line hard. 2.5 units. GUNNISON disadvantaged at HV l/s but wider draw, maps well here. 1 unit.

14		TEMPEST EXPRESS	32 ^	1	MY SUGAR	>>>>>>>>>>>>

The race: Pace looks true, some potential for faster. My Sugar should lead them from the inside and he travels strongly in his races, so it is unlikely something else will lead him but Hinchinlove is an interesting pace runner coming back to 1400m. He was racing well l/season this distance, setting or sitting right on top of strong tempos, so he may press forward to be outside the leader here, which could fire up My Sugar even more. Calling the pace genuine but it may even be quicker than that. Tempest Express went back from wider draw l/s but is more often handy to the speed lower barriers and Regency Bo Bo always a pest these days as he is only 50/50 to jump well but can occupy some sort of position if he does. Igniting another pest as he does have speed but hasn't been getting out of the gates well – his Blks come off today which might see him begin better? There is an overall lack of real speed in five of the inside 9 gates so Master Montaro may be able to get across and sit closer. He led a recent trial and sat in the first few in a strong pace 2 runs ago when he won this c/d.

Recommendations: My Sugar going well but surprised to see him favourite over BLAZE WARRIOR, really thought they would be the other way around. BLAZE WARRIOR 3.5 units. IGNITING's recent results mix of bad luck & misbehaving in races. His Blks come off today and that could help bring a better effort and he is particularly well handicapped. 1 unit.
